Swedish and Norwegian health care

The entire population has equal access to health care services. The health care systems are government funded and highly decentralized. The role of the Government is mainly limited to providing the legal framework and supervising the quality of the health care. Financial and operative responsibility rests with the county councils. They run hospitals – including all university hospitals, primary care and dental centres. About 85 per cent of all doctors are employed in the public health sector.

Sweden and Norway – ideal for family life and outdoor activities

Sweden and Norway are known for their education system and health care and for their high taxes which provide economic security in the event of illness, disability, old age and to families with children. The support for families in terms of child allowance, parental benefit and the right to kindergarten at low cost, is outstanding in Europe. The countries also have a long tradition of voluntary work, organising sports and other activities for children. They are probably the most child-friendly countries in the world, wherever you want to go the kids are welcome.

Both countries are famous for their beautiful and diverse landscapes and there are many opportunities to enjoy their varied outdoor activities. In wintertime these countries are perfect for winter sports such as skiing and skating. In spring and summer you can enjoy trekking, mountaineering, canoeing, fishing and many other activities.
